Success!

A motorcyclist was involved in an accident at an intersection in Chicopee. First responders showed up and both operators stated they had the right of way and green light. Pete called the Haymond Law Firm after The other driver's insurance company claimed he was at fault, and denied responsibility.

With a great deal of effort The Haymond Law Firm managed to secure security camera footage from a nearby store. The footage showed the moment when the cars started to move forward across the stop line, and highlighted when the light turned green. Thirty seconds into the video, the film shows Pete entering into view and heading into the intersection.

Our investigator and attorneys went out to the scene and filmed the light sequence at the intersection and timed the length that our client's traffic light would be green. Ultimately, we proved that the light stays green for 40 seconds and as a result, we were able to prove that our client entered the intersection with the green light.

Pete had suffered a broken leg and arm and it seemed that the other driver's insurance company would want to settle. However, despite this evidence, the insurance company still only wanted to accept 50% fault. We absolutely disagreed, and filed a bad faith action against the insurance company. Within two days they accepted 100% fault for the collision and settled our client's property damage for the custom motorcycle and personal injury claims for $250,000.

Charlie was enjoying one of his favorite windy roads on his new machine. Only three months old and less than 300 miles on it he had barely started to break it in. To say he was cautious would be an understatement. However, It wouldn't make a difference when, after taking a left turn, Charlie was rear ended by a driver, who, upon investigation, was negligent on many levels.

The almost brand new bike was totaled and Charlie spent three weeks in the hospital recovering from his fractured leg and ligament damage in his left wrist. Although there was a temptation to try and settle with the other driver's insurance company himself, The motorcyclist would call The Haymond Law Firm.

Attorneys at the firm wasted no time looking into the facts of the case in front of them. The accident examination would show that the driver was following too closely, Operating a cell phone, failed to signal, speeding and had failed to stop for the yellow light that had turned red. In fact witnesses stated that the car had accelerated through the left turn in what they believed was an attempt to beat the red light.

These facts spearheaded an exceptionally strong case where Haymond Law Firm lawyers would point out to the car's insurance company that the courts could consider the number of negligent facts that contribute to the cause of the crash and raise the size of the judgment accordingly. A $450,000 settlement would be reached soon afterwards making for another satisfied client.

67 year old Dominic was taking his weekly Sunday ride with his two close friends. He and his companions had ridden this road almost every week since they had left the Army and knew every turn and twist on the old country route. Today, However, the routine journey would be shattered as a woman suddenly pulled out from a parking lot on his left right in front of him. His friend jumped into action and got him stabilized and into the ambulance and fortunately he survived but suffered a variety of orthopedic injuries that required extensive care.

As the bills started to pile up, things got worse when the woman's insurance company claimed that he was at fault for the collision. That's when he called the Haymond Law Firm. Attorneys and investigators for the firm interviewed eye witnesses and studied accident photos. Through their hard work and diligence, they were able to prove that the motorcyclist was in no way at fault. It was, instead, the operator of the automobile that was solely to blame. After seeing the case prepared by the Haymond Law Firm, The Insurance company would resolve the claim for $1.2 million.

Cynthia Jones was enjoying riding her V-Rod down a curvy country road on a sunny day. Just a few miles out of town, Cynthia became aware of a car following her much too closely. There were many places where it could pass safely, but still it continued to tailgate her. Cynthia slowed and hugged the right side of the roadway, giving the car ample opportunity to get by, but still the driver refused and instead inched his car even closer to her.

As the vehicles rounded a curve, a stalled car loomed in their path, causing Cynthia to apply her brakes. The tailgating driver was far too close to her to stop and instead slammed into her motorcycle, pushing it forward, into the stalled car.. Then, shockingly, the driver who had hit her and caused the accident, backed up, and drove away.

Luckily, the driver of the stalled car had witnessed the entire accident, and was able to call for help and give a description of the vehicle and its driver to the authorities. By the time Cynthia was en route to the hospital, a nearby patrol car had already apprehended the fleeing driver, and placed him under arrest.

Cynthia's serious injuries and her frustration with the insurance company led her to call the Haymond Law Firm. Attorneys from the firm quickly discovered a history of traffic violations and rejected offers of settlements from his insurance company. They finally offered a fair settlement on the eve of the trial for $850,000. Another big win for a client of The Haymond Law Firm...

WEEKEND RIDE TURNS TRAGIC

Paul was riding his motorcycle on a beautiful day in 2020 in the open space farm lands of Cornwall, CT. Suddenly, he was caught by surprise as he passed a barn when another driver made a left hand turn in front of him and hit him and his motorcycle. Paul suffered several broken ribs and loss of use in his right hand. Injuries that would forever impact his quality of life.

Despite several calls, The insurance company seemed to do everything in their power to avoid, delay and deny responsibility and communication with the client. Frustrated, Paul reached out to The Haymond Law Firm. Attorneys took control immediately and told the adjuster to keep the file on her desk and offer all of the available policy limits within two months of the accident. Otherwise we would attach land and assets owned by the wrongdoer. When the two months expired we filed to attach property and land to the defendant. Within days of that filing, the claim adjuster made a multi-million dollar offer to settle the case. The firm recovered 2.5 Million Dollars for the innocent motorcyclist.

AVOIDING FATIGUE

We all get tired. Whether from lack of sleep, a unexpectedly long ride or difficult road conditions, it's not unusual for our backs to ache, our arms to tire and our concentration to lapse. Experts tell us that nearly 20% of all auto accidents can be blamed on fatigue; not surprisingly, that number goes up when it applies to motorcycle accidents.

Below find some tips in dealing with that feeling of lethargy that we've all dealt with on one ride or another.

-Schedule your longer rides. Our bodies function on a 12 hour cycle. It's why we're usually deep asleep at 3:00am and feel like a nap at 3:00pm. Try not to plan the mid-way point of your ride in the middle of the afternoon and consider an early dinner.

-Cover your body. T-Shirts and open face helmets seem to make sense on a humid day, but continued exposure to the sun and the wind can actually be more damaging and exhausting than vented leathers and a visor.

-Cover your ears. Wind and exhaust noise can be pleasant enough on a short trip, but if you're on the road for an hour to two (or three), they can really start to burn you out. If your helmet doesn't cover your ears, consider one that does to swap out for longer rides. And it always a good idea to keep a few pairs of earplugs on hand,.

-And cover your eyes. Eye strain contributes to fatigue more than almost any other factor. If your helmet is visorless, then you need a good pair of UV protecting motorcycle glasses. And often overlooked is the optical quality of your windshield; if there are any imperfections in the plexi, either in the form of dings and cracks, or streaks, haziness or distortion, they can contribute to fatigue, eye pain, headache and double vision.
